Vista Gives Completion Schedule for WTE Project

DENVER, CO--(Marketwired - Jan 7, 2015) - Vista International Technologies, Inc. (OTCQB: VVIT), a pioneer in efficient Waste-to-Energy (WTE) technology, is pleased to give investors an update on the completion of its pilot WTE project. This project represents the first commercial installation of the newest generation of the Company's patented Thermal Gasifier technology.

Vista personnel are currently finishing construction on the main gasification unit. All other major project components are on the project site. The company expects to finish this construction in the next six weeks, and ship the unit to site by the end of February, 2015. Final installation is expected to take 3-4 weeks, and the project is expected to begin initial operation for testing purposes by the end of March.

CEO Tim Ruddy commented on the rollout. "We believe that the newest Thermal Gasifier model represents a best-in-class technology that will give our potential customers a superior alternative to what is currently available in the Waste to Energy marketplace. We are excited to complete this project and show the Waste to Energy community all that the new Vista systems have to offer."

Vista International Technologies, Inc. has been producing Waste-to-Energy gasification systems for over twenty years, with installations across three continents. The Company's technology has low costs of installation and operation, and allows for the processing of virtually any hydrocarbon-based waste product, including municipal solid waste, waste tires, sewage waste, and biomass, among others. The company's Waste-to-Energy systems are emission friendly and extremely efficient, and can be used to produce heat, steam, and/or electricity.
