

The Facts to Know When Donating Food

Did you know?

- Any food facility may donate food to a food bank or to another nonprofit charitable organization for distribution to persons free of charge.
- No food facility that donates wholesome food shall be subject to civil or criminal liability or penalty for violation of any laws, regulations, or ordinances.
- A food facility that donates food will not be liable for any damage that results from the consumption of the donated food, regardless of compliance with any laws relating to the packaging, labeling, or storage after the donation.
- A food facility must handle and store the food to be donated in a safe and sanitary manner. Food donated to the less fortunate must be maintained in the same manner as food sold to your customers.

As a food facility donating food, California state law protects you and supports food facilities that do the right thing!

Can you think of any reason not to donate your leftover food now?
We can't.

Visit www.Wastenotoc.org for more information on who needs your help, where you can donate and how you can be a part of ending hunger in Orange County.

What is hunger and how does it relate to health?

- What is hunger?
 - Hunger, also known as food insecurity, is a household-level economic and social condition of limited access to food.
 - Families who have access at all times to enough food for an active, healthy life are considered food secure.
 - Those who experience reduced intake and/or suffer with poor food quality due to insufficient financial resources or access to quality food are considered food insecure.
- Food insecurity and poor health
 - Hunger and food insecurity challenge the well being of children, adults, families and communities.
 - Pregnant women are more likely to give birth to low-birth-weight babies.
 - Children are more likely to have medical and behavioral problems, do poorly in school, require more hospitalizations and are more likely to develop chronic diseases as adults.
 - Among the elderly, food insecurity exacerbates acute chronic diseases and speeds the onset of degenerative diseases, leading to decreased quality and length of life (1).
- Obesity and food insecurity
 - While the problem is still being studied by public health experts, research has shown a direct correlation between food insecure households and obesity.
 - Although the paradox is not completely understood, several causes are being proposed. Some research shows that trade offs are often made between food quantity and food quality; when financial resources are stretched, families buy less expensive, less nutritious foods which are often higher in fat and sugar.
 - Obesity is also proposed as a result of cyclic access to food supplies. When financial resources become available such as the beginning of the month, family members may overeat and binge to compensate for when food was unavailable.
 - Lastly, research has also shown that obesity rates are higher in areas that have lower property values. Low income demographic areas typically have limited access to grocery stores with fresh affordable produce and other nutritional foods.
 - People experiencing food insecurity need healthy foods for their families to help them make ends meet and get through difficult times.
- How can you help?
 - Please consider hosting or participating in a healthy food drive.
- What is a healthy food drive?
 - A healthy food drive is the collection of canned/preserved food with an emphasis on the collection of foods that are reduced in fat, sugar and sodium. Examples of healthy food items include: canned fruit in light syrup, no sugar added applesauce, dried fruits, peanut butter, low sodium soups, granola bars, whole grain cereals, no salt added vegetables, and whole wheat pastas. (Please refer to the “Suggested Health Foods Donation List” for further details.)
 - Emphasis should be on collecting healthy foods which can be prepared in living arrangements with modest kitchen supplies.

Standard Practices for Community Clinics

To address the relationship between food insecurity and health, Orange County's Public Health Officer has developed a set of standard practices for all community clinics to seriously consider.

- Standard Practice #1: Screen patients for food insecurity

A 2-item food insecurity screen for identifying families at risk for food insecurity was developed and demonstrates sensitivity, specificity, and convergent validity. The food insecurity screen quickly identifies households with young children at risk for food insecurity, which enables providers to target services to ameliorate the health and developmental consequences associated with food insecurity.

Food Insecurity Screening tool in English:

Please answer the following statements with "often true", "sometimes true" and "never true":

--Within the past 12 months we worried whether our food would run out before we got money to buy more. Is this "often true", "sometimes true" or "never true"?

--Within the past 12 months the food we bought just didn't last and we didn't have money to get more. Is this "often true", "sometimes true" or "never true"?

Food Insecurity Screening Tool (Spanish/Español) - Preguntas para Medir la Inseguridad Alimentaria

Por favor escoja la respuesta que usted considere más verdadera con respecto a la frecuencia con la que usted estuvo preocupado debido a su acceso a los alimentos.

--En los pasados 12 meses estuvimos preocupados de que los alimentos se terminaran antes de adquirir dinero para comprar más. Esto sucedió "muy a menudo", "algunas veces", o "nunca"?

--En los pasados 12 meses la comida que compramos no fue suficiente y no tuvimos dinero para comprar más. Esto sucedió "muy a menudo", "algunas veces", o "nunca"?

- Standard Practice #2: Connect patients with resources to address hunger

We have the capability to end hunger in Orange County by maximizing the utility of our already existing infrastructure.

A Google Map of over 230 regularly distributing food pantries has been created to make it easier to identify locations that donate or accept food (www.wastenotoc.org). Other county resources include food banks and 211oc.org.

- Standard Practice #3: Provide food insecure clients with on-site emergency food

Clinics with the capacity to store food are encouraged to provide on-site emergency food. This can be as simple as storing nonperishable foods or as comprehensive as the Share Our Selves clinic's food pantry in Costa Mesa, CA.
