

Who are Al and Polly?

Al Luminum and Polly Ethylene (played by two live actors) are time traveling rock stars on a tour of Los Angeles County to teach hundreds of thousands of students to protect our environment. Al and Polly travel from school to school with the Environmental Defenders – four cartoon-animated kids representing the different ethnicities of Los Angeles' children – spreading messages about the environment and engaging students in actively preserving it. Catch their rockin' and energetic concert tour at elementary schools throughout Los Angeles County!

As time travelers, Al and Polly spent the past five years working together for the environmental organization Time Central on various missions. Their current mission is to use the highly effective Rock the Planet Tour to help students understand the importance of protecting our environment. You may remember them from their previous mission – the Environmental Defenders & the Case of the Missing Link – in which Al and Polly were to discover the missing link between the polluted present and the unpolluted future. They traveled through L.A. County elementary schools with the Environmental Defenders to uncover the answer. After several years of investigating, Al and Polly discovered, with the help of hundreds of thousands of students, the missing link to the unpolluted future was the children.
